THE MINISTER FOR HUMAN RESOURCE DEVELOPMENT (SHRI S.R. BOMMA!): (a) No, Sir.

(b) The Days of Indian Culture were held in Russia from 16th to 28th September, 1996. This was a cultural manifestation much smaller in scale and range than a Festival of India. So it cannot be compared with the Festival of India organised abroad in Russia and elsewhere.

The size and the duration of the show notwithstanding, the importance accorded to it by the Russian side may be gauged from the fact that the Russian Prime Minister, Mr. Chernomyrdin was present in the inauguration and also brought with him a message from President Yeltsin. According to the available reports, since the emergence of the Russian Federation, there has not been a representation at Prime Ministerial level at any cultural event in Moscow organised by another country. This was also the first time that the local costs of such a festival were covered by the Russian Government and that the components of the Indian contingent went to 9 other cities spread across Russia, including Siberia, besides Moscow and St. Petersburg.

The reaction of the audience was enthusiastic. There were full houses for the inaugural and the closing ceremonies and there was a large turn-out for various events organised during the Days. In St. Petersburg, the cultural events were welcomed by packed houses.

On the whole, the Days of Indian Culture in Russia became a major manifestation of friendship and mutual understanding between the two countries.
